

SPOTLIGHTERS

TEACHING SYMPOSIUM

GEMMA GUILLAZO-BLANCH

Gemma Guillazo-Blanch is a Tenured Lecturer of the Department of Psychobiology and Methodology at the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona (UAB). She finished her Psychology Degree in 1990 and defended her PhD thesis, supervised by Drs. Ignacio Morgado and Margarita Martí, in 1993 at the UAB. In addition to her work at the UAB, she has also conducted behavioral studies and research at the University of Sevilla (1998), the University of California in San Francisco (2001-2002; 2005-2006) and at the Institute of Biomedical Research of Barcelona (2000-2001). Gemma is also the principal investigator of a research group that has as its main objective, the evaluation of different treatments which could fundamentally enhance attention and memory processes in animal models of cognitive impairment. In addition, she has been involved in several outreach projects to disseminate public knowledge of Neuroscience.